Preface

Tutoring is likely as old as the human race itself. From early hunter-gatherers who taught their children survival skills to volunteer after school homework-helpers in 21st century, the history of tutoring is lengthy and varied. Online tutoring is considerably less costly than traditional face-to-face tutoring. This is especially significant when considering populations, for whom one-on-one tutoring has traditionally been economically unfeasible: online tutoring may be the most viable way for such families to provide these services to their children.

The author is very much fascinated to publish this work in the form of a book. This book will be of utmost helpful to the budding tutors of English, Mathematics and Sciences working in online. He got the inspiration of publishing this book when he worked as an online tutor with Tutor Vista at Chennai.
