

Orientation Programme on English for Day-to-Day life (12.09.2022)

The learning of a language in the era of Globalization has been considered as an asset where English has been dominating the entire world as a global language. As a result, the life of a common man can't be imagined without English. In order to give awareness about English language, Department of English has conducted an orientation programme on English for Day-to-Day life for the first year students of BBA. The programme was planned for two hours wherein Dr.T. Pushpanathan (Assistant Professor), the resource person introduced the essentials of English in the first part. The students were encouraged to present a '2- minute' talk, which is very short where they can express their opinion, understanding, studies, and so on in the later part. The programme was highly interactive.
